Miss Ryan, late co-star with Louise Gunning in "Marcelle," will be seen in a character quite new to the stage. She enacts the role of Paulette Olivine, a Salome dancer, who is known as "The Blue Mouse." She is pretty, yet rough, dresses gorgeously and lives her life according to her own ideas. Therefore, for the consideration of $2,000 per month, she plays the part of Mrs. Augustus Rollett, whose husband, as generatary to the president of the Interstate railroad, wants to be made division superintendent. The president, Lewellyn by name, has a weakness for innocent filtrations with pretty girls. Rollett conceives the idea of naving the "Mouse," while Mrs. Lewellyn, a most distasteful wife, smells a "mouse" and starts in search of her. Rollett's father-in-law from Cohoes unexpectedly happens in town and his mistakes add to the general assembly, that they may be general assembly. of her. Rollett's father-in-law from Cohoes unexpectedly happens in town and his mistakes add to the general hilarity which continues unabated through the three acts. After all, the "Mouse," as Miss Ryan plays the part, is a lovable creature and the gudience agrees that her temperament makes everybody love her.

At Broadway theater on Monday, Jan, 25, Miss Clara Turner and an able company under the management of Ira W. Jackson will begin a week's engagement, playing both afternoons and evenings.

By persistent effort and a determination to enhance her value to the stage Miss Turner, in the opinion of many, heads the repertoire stars. Her versatility is almost unparalleled; youth, age, poverty, wealth, rank, obscurity, are alike to her.

Those who have seen her in other characters will await with eager curiosity and interest her appearance in "A Modern Lady Godiva," the new play with which Miss Amelia Bingham thrilled St. Louis and which would have won a fortune for her had not sickness necessitated her withdrawal from the stage at the height of its success.
